Detailed indicators for the intended outputs and outcomes including the timeline are given in the Strategic Plan of the ForClim Project.

1.2 Specific Objectives

- 1.2.1 The carbon storage in the natural forest is secured through sustainable forest management and protection within the 50,000 hectares mountain range.
- 1.2.2 The dissemination and implementation of appropriate agroforestry technologies as well as afforestation of large areas in the surrounding communities either reduced or fixed green house gases.
- 1.2.3 The sustainable and decentralized management and the protection of forest resources are integrated into the land use plans of the municipalities and the respective annual budget for their implementation is allocated.
- 1.2.4 The energy potential of organic materials (like firewood from afforestation or agroforestry systems) is used to substitute the wood from the natural forest and fossil fuel as primary energy source.
- 1.2.5 The conservation of the mountain ecosystem with height and climate gradients (including the declaration of Critical Habitats) secures a refuge area for flora and fauna to adapt to climate change.
- 1.3 By the end of the project the following indicators shall be achieved:
